Lance resigns; Carter looking for successor

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is trying to replace a man he says is irreplaceable.

Stunned by the resignation of longtime friend Bert Lance as his budget director, Carter began the search today for a successor.

"There will be an orderly transition," the President told a news conference Wednesday when he announced Lance's resignation. "I will decide beginning after today on who a successor might be."

Among names that quickly surfaced were:

—James T. McIntyre Jr., director of Georgia's budget office in 1972 while Carter was governor and now deputy director of the Office of Management and Budget, which Lance had headed.

—Robert Strauss, a former chairman of the Democratic National Committee and now the U.S. ambassador for trade negotiations.

—Alice Rivlin, director of the Congressional Budget Office.

—Hale Champion, former California finance director and now an official at the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Carter said the task of finding a new budget director won't be easy.

"I don't think there is any way that I could find anyone to replace Bert Lance that would be, in my judgment, as competent, as strong, as decent and as close to me as a friend and adviser as he has been," the President said.

"Obviously, the government will continue," Carter declared, "and I hope to do a good job as President, and I am sure a successor will be adequate.

"But there has been a special relationship between me and Bert Lance that transcended official responsibilities or duties or even governmental service of the last six or seven years.

"So he has occupied a special place in my governmental career, in my political career, and in my personal life. I don't think there is any way anyone could replace him now."

Carter hinted that he might have an additional problem because of the controversy that finally forced Lance to resign.

Asked if the Lance affair had damaged his own credibility with the American people, the President replied: "I can't say. I'd guess to some extent."

In a letter to "My Dear Mr. President," Lance quit "because of the amount of controversy and the continuing nature of it" surrounding his personal financial affairs and his business dealings as the head of two Georgia banks.

NTSB recommends rear warning signals

Two fatal accidents involving Frisco Railroad trains, including one that occurred Dec. 11, 1976 in Sikeston, has brought a recommendation this week from the National Transportation Safety Board (NTSB) for a national rule change for locomotive warning systems.

The NTSB recommends that the Federal Railroad Administration draw up regulations requiring locomotive to have warning signal audible from the rear of the engine as well as the front.

Both accidents involved locomotives moving backward.

The Sikeston accident occured about 4:30 p.m. two miles south of Murray Lane. Killed was Rick Hammock, 13, of 1002 Ruth St., who was walking along the tracks with three other youths when he was struck.

The NTSB quoted one of the youths as saying he did not hear the train whistle, but turned around when he saw the reflection of the headlight on the rail. It was after he turned around that he heard the whistle.

The engineer said he began blowing the whistle about a half mile away from the boys. The train was moving about 50 miles per hour at the time of the accident.

The other accident occured April 2, near Neelyville, when two motorcyclists were struck by an engine. The surviving cyclist said he did not hear a whistle, although the engineer said one was blowing continuously.

The Frisco Railroad once had whistles facing to the rear of the engine for the purpose of recalling flagmen. In the early 1960's when the need for flag protection was eliminated, the railroad remounted the whistles to face foreward to provide greater warning in that direction.

However, the NSTB said mounting the whistles in that manner greatly reduced the effectiveness of the warning when the locomotive is moving backward.

Field Day set Friday

PORTAGEVILLE— The Annual Delta Center Field Day will be held Friday at the Lee Research Farm, seven miles southeast of Portageville on Highway T.

Two tours are planned for the afternoon. The north tour will have stops covering the latest information on nitrates for cotton, three new soybean varieties, 1977 corn and sorghum variety tests and 1977 insect outbreak.

The south tour will cover new cotton, weed control in cotton and soybeans, breeding for resistance to southwestern corn bores, potash fertilizer and the soybean cyst nematode.

It will be possible for those interested to take both tours.

Meter ticket box stolen

Someone took a parking ticket deposit box from a parking meter in the 100 block of Center Street between 5 p.m. Monday and 9:11 a.m. Tuesday, according to the Public Safety Department.

The deposit box was later found in front of Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., and 20 parking meter tickets were found in the alley between Front Street and Center Street.

The $10 that went with 20 tickets was not found.

Glen Godwin of Oran Route One reported that a citizens band antenna was taken from his car between 10 p.m. Tuesday and 8:30 a.m. Wednesday while the car was parked on Lake Street.

The antenna was valued at $20.

Rain, slick street spark accidents

Rain and slick pavement apparently helped cause two traffic accidents Wednesday within minutes of one another at the intersection of South Main Street and Southland Drive.

One of the accidents ended up with a Board of Municipal Utilities truck overturned in a ditch and a brand new 1977 automobile extensively damaged.

The first of the two accidents occurred at 3:57 p.m. when Betty J. McAnelly, 45, of Vanduser, made a left turn in her automobile from Southland Drive onto South Main Street, according to public safety officers.

Her car fishtailed on the wet pavement and skidded from the inside lane to the outside lane into the path of the northbound utility truck, driven by Charles D. Wathen, 44, 504 Malcolm St.

Public safety officers said Wathen could not stop either and struck the McAnelly car in right rear door.

The impact sent the McAnelly car skidding out of control and into the parking lot of Sikeston Motor Co., where it hit and extensively damaged a 1977 Ford Granada.

The utility truck overturned in the ditch just south of the entrance to the parking lot.

Gemberly Perkins, 30, of Cyrus Motel, who was riding in the truck was treated in the emergency room of Missouri Delta Community Hospital for a chest bruise.

No one in the McAnelly car was injured. There were no arrests.

About 15 minutes later, Donna Trudie Stephenson, 19, of 204 Illinois Ave., attempted to make a left turn onto South Main Street from the parking lot of the IGA Foodliner and was struck by a car driven south on Main Street by Carol Ann Glenn, 19, of Charleston Route Two.

The Stephenson woman was arrested for failing to yield the right of way. There were no injuries.

8 injured in SeMo area, 1 seriously

One person was seriously injured and seven others received lesser injuries in six accidents Wednesday and early today on area roads, the high way patrol said today.

A Dothan, Ala. man, Isaac Nelson Lewis, 31, was seriously injured in a one-vehicle accident at 2:25 p.m. Wednesday on Route 72, six miles west of Millersville.

The patrol said a tractor-trailer unit driven east by Lewis failed to make a curve, ran off the road and overturned. He was taken to St. Francis Medical Center in Cape Girardeau.

Two persons received moderate injuries in a truck-car accident at 1 p.m. Wednesday on Route 60, a half mile north of Dudley.

Roy Stevenson, 65, of Armorel, Ark., driver of a southbound car, pulled into the path of a bob truck driven east by Russell Rowland, 41, of Poplar Bluff. The truck struck the car, then continued on and overturned in a road ditch.

Both drivers received moderate injuries. Rowland was taken to Poplar Bluff Hospital and Stevenson was taken to the Veterans Administration Hospital in Poplar Bluff. Stevenson was arrested for failure to yield right-of-way.

An accident at 6:40 p.m. Wednesday on Route 67, a half mile south of Fredericktown caused minor injuries to a Moberly man.

A van driven north by Clifford Paul, 57, of Fenton hit a bridge then went across the centerline into the path of a van driven south by James J. Lee, 58, of Moberly. The Paul van was struck broadside by the Lee van.

Lee received minor injuries and was taken to Madison County Hospital in Fredericktown.

A one-vehicle accident at 8:20 p.m. Wednesday on Route Y, seven miles north of Cape Girardeau, caused minor injuries to the driver and a passenger.

A van driven west by Christopher L. Oberle, 21, of Jackson, slid sideways on wet pavement and overturned. A passenger, Mary Kay Wretherford, 19, of Oak Ridge and Oberle were to St. Francis Medical Center in Cape Girardeau for treatment of minor injuries.

A Jackson youth, Rodney G. Seabaugh, 16, received minor injuries in a one-vehicle accident at 9:10 p.m. Wednesday on Highway 61, four miles north of Jackson.

Office is burglarized

NEW MADRID --The office of O.B. Cannon and Sons at Associated Electric Co-op located in St. Jude Industrial Park was burglarized sometime between 4:30 and 7:40 a.m. today.

Items reported stolen included one calculator valued at $80; one socket set valued at $225; hand tools valued at $225; paint brushes valued at $120; and spray guns valued at $260.

Hearnes file closed

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. (AP) — The new U.S. attorney for western Missouri said today his office has terminated an investigation of Warren E. Heares, former Missouri governor.

"My staff and I have examined the rather voluminous files which have been accumulated during the past three years in the Hearnes case," Ronald S. Reed, Jr., said in a formal statement.

"In my opinion, they do not contain evidence upon which to base a grand jury indictment. For this reason, the file on Mr. Hearnes has been closed and no further action is planned."

Reed, a St. Joseph lawyer, became U.S. attorney in August after the Senate confirmed his nomination by President Carter.

The Hearnes case was initiated when the Nixon administration controlled the Department of Justice in Washington and Bert Hurn, a Republican from Neosho, was U.S. attorney in Kansas City.

The investigation was climaxed when Hearnes, at his request, appeared before a federal grand jury in Kansas City in April of 1975. After three days, Hurn announced that Hearnes was absolved of any charges that might have been based on his income tax return for 1968.

Hearnes was becoming involved at the time in a campaign for the Democratic nomination for the U.S. Senate in 1976. He was governor from 1965 through 1972.

One of the questions involved was the source of contributions to a Hearnes political club in his home area of southeast Missouri and whether Hearnes converted campaign constributions to his personal use.

The inquiry also delved into the depositing of state money at favored banks and the awarding of state contracts in return for campaign contributions.

In August, the Internal Revenue Service in Washington filed a civil action against Hearnes seeking $15,503 in additional income taxes for 1972, 1973 and 1974. It alleged he diverted $25,-421 in political contributions to his personal use in those years.

Hearnes denied the charge and said it was a continuation of IRS harassment which the Nixon administration initiated.

The senatorial nomination fell to him when the overwhelming victor in the race, Rep. Jerry Litton, was killed in a plane crash on primary election night in 1976. John C. Danforth, Missouri attorney general who was the Republican nominee, defeated Hearnes in the general election.

LANCE SHOULD STEP DOWN

Bert Lance should quit. Everybody who is nobody knows that.

The reason he should go back to Georgia is not the way he handles federal money as director of the Office of Management and Budget but because of the way he handles his own personal budget and the way we have to handle ours.

We are a nation of debtors. The total private debt in the United States, not counting corporations, hovers around a trillion dollars.

When we're young, we face the start-up costs — scraping together enough to buy a car, furniture and a house (with the mortgage running 9 to 9.5 per cent if we're lucky).

Hospitalization pays only part of the bill for having children. The $14 baby shoes come later. A family of four is lucky to get away with $40 or $50 a week for groceries alone.

Then the family hits the middle years. That's the time after we've peddled our souls to the local orthodontist so the kids can bite apples and equippped them with $200 contact lenses and $13 jeans. In the middle years, we hope they'll be able to go to college — and that we'll be able to pay $2,300 a year at a state university.

During these middle years, aging relatives come to live with us, usually because they aren't making it on Social Security.

At the same time, inflation pinches in so that savings are gobbled up. We are barraged with "quick and friendly" offers from every kind of legitimate loan shark who, now that state usury laws have generally been repealed, can and do charge huge amounts of interest. It used to be a crime in some states to charge 7 per cent interest.

The best rate is from credit unions, perhaps 9 per cent on a new car or on a 10-year second mortgage on the house. Banks charge 10, 11, 12, 13 and more in interest on many of their loans. Credit buying at stores or through credit cards can cost 18 per cent a year.

So it's pinch and budget, borrow and scrape, watch the bank balance and hope that the check we floated Wednesday doesn't clear the bank before the paycheck goes in on Friday. And when it does bounce, set up a line if credit (18 per cent on those automatic loans on overdrawn checks) or cough up $6 or so for each bounced check, with a black mark on our credit rating.

This is why Bert Lance should step down. Maybe he hasn't broken any law but he has scandalized Americans by bending laws and ethics in banking.

He and his family have been able to overdraw their bank accounts again and again — sometimes by hundreds of thousands of dollars— without a peep, much less a bounced check.

An on top of that, Lance has used the same collateral for two different loans from two different New York banks. Try doing that yourself sometime and see if you can get even a nickel.

This conduct is an affront to all of us who scramble through the system, putting up with what we must. It is an affront to all Americans who have the courage and honesty to pay their bills on time, to borrow money legitimately and to pay the going rate so that we can fulfill obligations to our own families.

None of the laws of the ordinary people seem to apply to Bert Lance when it comes to money matters. And that hurts.

He is sloppy and careless in his personal financial affairs. Getting it done is more important to him than how he gets it done.

And wasn't that just what we were angry about in Watergate? Didn't we hear on the White House tapes the voices of our former leaders saying they didn't care how it was done — just get it done? Yes, we did.

The stinging truth remains from those days: The means are as important as the ends.

If this is the way bankers deal with one another, then it is time to reform the banking system.

And if this is the way Bert Lance operates, then he should get out.

O'HAIR'S LATEST CAMPAIGN

Madalyn Murray O'Hair, the Ralph Nader of atheism has launched a new campaign--this time against the Pledge of Allegiance and the United States currency. "Oh, I'll find a place," he said.

Our postage-stamp yard was already bursting at the seams with shrubs and bulbs and flowers, but I didn't say anything else. We'd agreed long ago that the yard was his domain. Since we both worked, we had had to divide the tasks around the house, and I concerned myself mostly with things indoors.

The weather grew cold, and I was putting up Christmas decorations that day the phone rang. My husband had suffered a heart attack at work. Before I could even reach him, he was gone.

The months dragged by. The winter was particularly long and cold, and I had not been able to rid myself of my sense of loss. But when March came, my emotions overflowed with grief that for the first time was mingled with joy. Looking out the back door one morning I had discovered his last gift to me. OUT LOOK

When a man says that on weekends he takes his wife and family into the country or by the sea, and that he can find God better under the open sky than in a stuffy old church, we know he is making excuses. Some such men, with their wives, do their "communing with nature" under a tavern roof while the kids spend their quarters and dimes at the seaside fairground. A better type of family might genuinely picnic in the woods, swim in the sea or fish the rivers, but if they do so as an Alternative to attending church, they are scarcely likely to spend much time communing with God, even in the open air. They can be botanists, athletes, geologists or what have you, but it takes a poetic or artistic mind, and a mature one at that, as Wordsworth reminds us, before we can say:

"...And I have felt
A presence that disturbs me with the joy
Of elevated thoughts, a sense sublime
Of something far more deeply interfused,
Whose dwelling is the light of setting suns,
And the round ocean and the living air,
And the blue sky..."

Without the will to worship, it is scarcely likely that we shall worship any more readily in the country than in the city.

Yet it is from the city—the inner city—that Salvationists every summer take hundreds, thousands of underprivileged youngsters in the hope that they will find the worship of God through nature. It is a fact, of course, that one can be "nearer God's heart in a garden than anywhere else on earth." The marvels to say nothing of the beauties, of field and flower, of creation and recreation every springtime, the fading leaf and the fertilizing compost will intrigue the mind and bestir the spirit. The farmer's boy is more conscious of the vicissitudes and vulgarities of animal and human procreation than is any city boy swapping dirty jokes in a littered back alley. But the farmer's boy learns the round of the seasons and the periods of gestation piecemeal, as his mind can receive it. His newly acquired knowledge is too profound to cause him to snicker, and if he is no angel, he has less cause to become brutal and insensitive.

Perhaps the Salvationist is a little eager in expecting a city boy to assimilate everything of the country in a short week, but he is not misguided in thinking that the lad will glimpse something of the profundity of natural life. Besides which, at camp, he is not left to his own resources. The boy can flex his muscles in physical exercise, and can test his maturity in communal sharing, both under supervision. Both are part of the camp tuition. Both are offered as part of the fun.

Even so, a lad is not likely to learn much of God unless His Presence is made apparent. Therefore, those who serve at the camp are dedicated Christians, and Christian worship comes as naturally in a united Sunday meeting as in family prayers in the hut each day with a few fellows under the leadership of a youthful counselor. At all times, "church" is as natural as making a home run or lining up for second helpings in the dining hall. At camp, communing with God is combined with communing with nature.

For it is the Salvationist's belief and experience that spiritual awareness is more fundamental in human nature than poetic awareness. A lad or girl may not even see, still less be ecstatic about, a sunset, but he or she will not fail to hear the still small voice that speaks in a moment of prayer, in song or exhotation, in conversation, or perhaps more potently, in example unconsciously expressed day after day by a youthful worker cum hero.

The Bible shows men's beginnings in a garden, and his consummation in a city, but throughout the Bible it is over cities that God expresses His greatest displeasure. What Salvationists seek to do at camp is to place the garden of love in young hearts so that when they return to the city they may bring its fragrance into its streets and habitations. After all, it is the will to worship that counts.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

For Love of Humphrey, Full Employment Bill May Pass

by Jack Anderson and Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — The ailing Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., demonstrating why he is called the happy warrior, responded to the news that he has terminal cancer by visiting other patients in his hospital wing and offering them cheerful encouragement. He also passed around his flowers and candy to patients who didn't receive any.

Such an attitude is typical of this warm, sensitive man who has endeared himself to his Washington colleagues. It may explain why they want to do something for Hubert and why, therefore, full employment legislation may pass Congress.

The word is spreading on Capitol Hill that the ebullient Humphrey wants eagerly to make one final, lasting contribution to the country. He wants to provide more jobs for his fellow men who are out of work. He has joined Rep. Augustus Hawkins, D-Calif., in sponsoring a bill calculated to achieve full employment.

It may have a slight flavor of the 1930s, with its provisions to use grants, loans, tax breaks and other fiscal devices to create more jobs. But suddenly the Humphrey-Hawkins bill is given a good chance to pass.

No less than Jimmy Carter is quietly preparing to throw his weight behind the bill. His top assistants have been in touch with aides of Humphrey and Hawkins. The staffs are now meeting daily, and a final agreement is expected in a few days. "The president has personally accelerated the timetable on this," one participant told us.

Such heavyweights as Labor Secretary Ray Marshall, domestic policymaker Stuart Eisenstat and economic adviser Charles Shultze are now involved in the negotiations. Once a tentative agreement is reached, the president will discuss the final details personally with Humphrey and Hawkins.

There remains a major conflict over the bill's goal of driving down unemployment to four percent. Just about everyone who wants to work should be able to get a job, allowing for the constant number between jobs, if the four percent goal can be achieved.

But some White House aides believe the figure may be unrealistically low. "The president doesn't like the idea of being tied to a specific number," one presidential assistant told our associate Howie Kurtz. "He wants to make a good-faith effort to reach the goal without having his hands tied by a rigid timetable."

The bill would provide the monetary means to create more jobs. Federal funds, for example, would be awarded to private companies for needed public works projects. This would be supplemented by public sevice jobs and government training programs.

But if these efforts should fall short of the four percent goal, then the federal government would become the "employer of last resort." It would provide temporary, low-paying jobs to those who can't find work elsewhere.

The White House objects to this provision. "You can't legislate full employment," complained one Carter adviser. "You can't have a legally enforceable plan where an unemployed person can go into court and say, 'Judge, I want a job.'"

Explained another White House official: "First we want to test the idea of large-scale public service jobs." Before the government does any more hiring, he said, the president wants to try out his planned 1.4 million welfare jobs and 200,000 youth jobs.

Congressional backers argued, however, that the "last resort" jobs are not automatic and would be created only if the president and Congress decide they are needed.

The two sides are also negotiating over the role of the Federal Reserve Board, which controls the nation's monetary policy. Under the bill, the Fed would be required to certify to Congress whether its monetary policy will help achieve full employment. But congresssonal liberals believe that the nation's growth is being stymied by the crafty, conservative Fed chairman, Arthur Burns.

"For years, economic policy has been made in the backrooms by Arthur Burns and a few private bankers who sit on the Fed," complained one congressional expert. "This bill would take economic policy out of the backrooms and put it on the floor of Congress."

Agreed one presidential assistant: "Nowhere in the Constitution does it say that bankers shall have a branch of the federal government." But he added: "While we don't mind if Congress conflicts with the Fed, it would be a major political battle for the administration to infringe on the independence of the Fed."

Some of Carter's economic advisers are also worried that the legislation will fuel inflation. "The inflation problem is very real," a White House economist told us.

Humphrey and Hawkins insist, however, that lower unemployment doesn't necessarily lead to more inflation. For each one percent reduction in the jobless rolls, they say, the government saves about $20 billion in unemployment checks, food stamps and other benefits. "This bill will help Carter balance his budget," said a supporter.

A compromise between the two sides, nevertheless, is in the offing. And President Carter will come out fighting for a national commitment to full employment.

Who's News — A big-time corporation lawyer, Milton Handler, is expected to direct a presidential study of the antitrust laws. He was described by Attorney General Griffin Bell as "a superstar in antitrust law." But our files show this same Handler testified twice against the 1975 Antitrust Improvements Act. It turns out that Handler has also represented big corporations in antitrust cases.

By Victor Riesel

BY VICTOR RIESEL
Empire Building Inside the Government

Secretary of the Treasury Michael Blumenthal is Victor Riesel's guest columnist today. He writes on how talent is mangled inside the government.

By W. Michael Blumenthal
Secretary of the Treasury

WASHINGTON -- At a recent 50th anniversary celebration of the Chicago Economic Club, I was asked executive of one of our nation's largest corporations to cabinet secretary of a new administration. While my answer covered many points, one of the main differences I had to note is in the management of the human side of government and business organizations.

Personnel policies and practices could not be more different, and I have pondered why this distinction should be so sharp.

My conclusion is that the differences stem largely from the differences in the way success, status, and prestige are measured in the worlds of business and government. In the corporate world of today, managers are judged by how well they make use of the resources which they have been given. I believe by extension that no manager can be a success who does not do a good job of managing his most important resources, his employes and colleagues.

But in government, success is too often measured by how many resources are at one's disposal, instead of how well they are managed. Not enough government executives have a real interest in efficient management of their area of responsibility.

Too often they are content with the prestige which derives from their present influence. And the size of their staff and the amount of other resources to serve their needs are often seen as a measure of this influence.

The results of this system of rewards for increased empire are predictable. Pay for government employes is determined by so-called objective criteria that prohibit recognition for outstanding service in the name of treating all alike.

Training is available at the government's expense only if you wish to improve your already-existing skills. The government generally will not pay you to take courses that broaden your abilities and prepare you for a new career, even if the new career is in government. Personnel practices and rules drastically restrain the ability of the government executive to realign his subordinates in new ways responsive to changing demands.

There is no control system over costs or headcount except the relatively crude and inflexible imposition of overall limits, a measure gross enough that considerable ingenuity must be exercised to overcome the absurdities its application otherwise produces.

And the incentives in the system do not, on the whole, foster efficiency.

Business, on the contrary, has developed a set of tools to enable its managers to maximize the use of their resources, people included, and provides rewards to those who do so. There are bonus plans, generous training programs, elaborate cost control and personnel data systems, and constant efforts to assure maximum flexibility in the work force consistent with retaining the good will of the individuals affected.

In contrast, the government's personnel tools are medieval.

There are limits to this comparison. Various restraints imposed by the Civil Service Commission are designed to serve the beneficial purpose of insulating government service from excessive political partisanship and patronage. This is a laudatory goal. I firmly believe in protecting the progress we have made since the days of Taft and Teddy Roosevelt in building a career Civil Service. But I also believe that we cannot ignore the complaints about bloated, unresponsive, and insensitive bureaucracy, which can be traced on one hand to the inability of government executives to reward merit and productivity, and on the other hand to the near-impossibility of removing incompetents.

Quite aside from the question of incompetence, it can be difficult for the government executive to pull together the team he wants. Private-sector executives can much more easily create a management team that will strongly support their policies and objectives. In government, career officers occupy nearly 90 per cent of the management positions. And not the agency head but the Civil Service Commission finally passes on the qualifications of a good share of the managers an agency head can designate.

Obviously, I am not suggesting a return to the spoils system. And my experience thus far at the Treasury reassures me that most career officers are willing, with the proper direction, to work hard for the administration of a newly-elected President. But it nevertheless remains true that the private-sector manager has more flexibility in choosing his team.

There are some hopeful signs. The President has expressed a strong interest in management. The introduction of the zero-based budgeting system in many ways will be an effective counterforce to some of the institutional rigidities I have described.

In addition, the new chairman of the Civil Service Commission, Alan Campbell, is a man who is fully capable of quickly grasping the nature and complexities of these proglems. He has commissioned a study group of people from both inside and outside government to review the government's management policies, in an attempt to remedy their worst drawbacks while preserving the benefits that they do offer.

We in the administration regard this work as of signal importance. But we should not be alone in that regard.Most of us who have come to Washington as part of the new administration will be gone long before many of these problems are resolved or even alleviated. And I fear that too often we do not give the proper time to such long-run institutional problems. We are too preoccupied with crises of the moment.

But everyone -- government management, business management, our labor leadership in both the private and the public sector, the civil servants now within the system, and most of all our citizens – has something to gain from a successful and meaningful review of our government's management of its human resources. For those in government, it could mean a better place to work. For those outside government, it could mean a more efficient, fair, responsive, and humane public service.

LANCE SHOULD STEP DOWN

Bert Lance should quit. Everybody who is nobody knows that.

The reason he should go back to Georgia is not the way he handles federal money as director of the Office of Management and Budget but because of the way he handles his own personal budget and the way we have to handle ours.

His newly acquired knowledge is too profound to cause him to snicker, and if he is no angel, he has less cause to become brutal and insensitive.

Perhaps the Salvationist is a little eager in expecting a city boy to assimilate everything of the country in a short week, but he is not misguided in thinking that the lad will glimpse something of the profundity of natural life. Besides which, at camp, he is not left to his own resources. The boy can flex his muscles in physical exercise, and can test his maturity in communal sharing, both under supervision. Both are part of the camp tuition. Both are offered as part of the fun.

Even so, a lad is not likely to learn much of God unless His Presence is made apparent. Therefore, those who serve at the camp are dedicated Christians, and Christian worship comes as naturally in a united Sunday meeting as in family prayers in the hut each day with a few fellows under the leadership of a youthful counselor. At all times, "church" is as natural as making a home run or lining up for second helpings in the dining hall. At camp, communing with God is combined with communing with nature.

For it is the Salvationist's belief and experience that spiritual awareness is more fundamental in human nature than poetic awareness. A lad or girl may not even see, still less be ecstatic about, a sunset, but he or she will not fail to hear the still small voice that speaks in a moment of prayer, in song or exhotation, in conversation, or perhaps more potently, in example unconsciously expressed day after day by a youthful worker cum hero.

The Bible shows man's beginnings in a garden, and his consummation in a city, but throughout the Bible it is over cities that God expresses His greatest displeasure. What Salvationists seek to do at camp is to place the garden of love in young hearts so that when they return to the city they may bring its fragrance into its streets and habitations. After all, it is the will to worship that counts.

By Victor Riesel

BY VICTOR RIESEL
Empire Building Inside the Government

Secretary of the Treasury Michael Blumenthal is Victor Riesel's guest columnist today. He writes on how talent is mangled inside the government.

By W. Michael Blumenthal
Secretary of the Treasury

WASHINGTON – At a recent 50th anniversary celebration of the Chicago Economic Club, I was asked executive of one of our nation's largest corporations to cabinet secretary of a new administration. While my answer covered many points, one of the main differences I had to note is in the management of the human side of government and business organizations.

Personnel policies and practices could not be more different, and I have pondered why this distinction should be so sharp.

My conclusion is that the differences stem largely from the differences in the way success, status, and prestige are measured in the worlds of business and government. In the corporate world of today, managers are judged by how well they make use of the resources which they have been given. I believe by extension that no manager can be a success who does not do a good job of managing his most important resources, his employes and colleagues.

But in government, success is too often measured by how many resources are at one's disposal, instead of how well they are managed. Not enough government executives have a real interest in efficient management of their area of responsibility.

Too often they are content with the prestige which derives from their present influence. And the size of their staff and the amount of other resources to serve their needs are often seen as a measure of this influence.

The results of this system of rewards for increased empire are predictable. Pay for government employes is determined by so-called objective criteria that prohibit recognition for outstanding service in the name of treating all alike.

Training is available at the government's expense only if you wish to improve your already-existing skills. The government generally will not pay you to take courses that broaden your abilities and prepare you for a new career, even if the new career is in government. Personnel practices and rules drastically restrain the ability of the government executive to realign his subordinates in new ways responsive to changing demands.

There is no control system over costs or headcount except the relatively crude and inflexible imposition of overall limits, a measure gross enough that considerable ingenuity must be exercised to overcome the absurdities its application otherwise produces.

And the incentives in the system do not, on the whole, foster efficiency.

Business, on the contrary, has developed a set of tools to enable its managers to maximize the use of their resources, people included, and provides rewards to those who do so. There are bonus plans, generous training programs, elaborate cost control and personnel data systems, and constant efforts to assure maximum flexibility in the work force consistent with retaining the good will of the individuals affected.

In contrast, the government's personnel tools are medieval.

There are limits to this comparison. Various restraints imposed by the Civil Service Commission are designed to serve the beneficial purpose of insulating government service from excessive political partisanship and patronage. This is a laudatory goal. I firmly believe in protecting the progress we have made since the days of Taft and Teddy Roosevelt in building a career Civil Service. But I also believe that we cannot ignore the complaints about bloated, unresponsive, and insensitive bureaucracy, which can be traced on one hand to the inability of government executives to reward merit and productivity, and on the other hand to the near-impossibility of removing incompetents.

Quite aside from the question of incompetence, it can be difficult for the government executive to pull together the team he wants. Private-sector executives can much more easily create a management team that will strongly support their policies and objectives. In government, career officers occupy nearly 90 per cent of the management positions. And not the agency head but the Civil Service Commission finally passes on the qualifications of a good share of the managers an agency head can designate.

Obviously, I am not suggesting a return to the spoils system. And my experience thus far at the Treasury reassures me that most career officers are willing, with the proper direction, to work hard for the administration of a newly-elected President. But it nevertheless remains true that the private-sector manager has more flexibility in choosing his team.

There are some hopeful signs. The President has expressed a strong interest in management. The introduction of the zero-based budgeting system in many ways will be an effective counterforce to some of the institutional rigidities I have described.

In addition, the new chairman of the Civil Service Commission, Alan Campbell, is a man who is fully capable of quickly grasping the nature and complexities of these proglems. He has commissioned a study group of people from both inside and outside government to review the government's management policies, in an attempt to remedy their worst drawbacks while preserving the benefits that they do offer.

We in the administration regard this work as of signal importance. But we should not be alone in that regard. Most of us who have come to Washington as part of the new administration will be gone long before many of these problems are resolved or even alleviated. And I fear that too often we do not give the proper time to such long-run institutional problems. We are too preoccupied with crises of the moment.

But everyone -- government management, business management, our labor leadership in both the private and the public sector, the civil servants now within the system, and most of all our citizens – has something to gain from a successful and meaningful review of our government's management of its human resources. For those in government, it could mean a better place to work. For those outside government, it could mean a more efficient, fair, responsive, and humane public service.

For Love of Humphrey, Full Employment Bill May Pass

by Jack Anderson and Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — The ailing Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., demonstrating why he is called the happy warrior, responded to the news that he has terminal cancer by visiting other patients in his hospital wing and offering them cheerful encouragement. He also passed around his flowers and candy to patients who didn't receive any.

Such an attitude is typical of this warm, sensitive man who has endeared himself to his Washington colleagues. It may explain why they want to do something for Hubert and why, therefore, full employment legislation may pass Congress.

The word is spreading on Capitol Hill that the ebullient Humphrey wants eagerly to make one final, lasting contribution to the country. He wants to provide more jobs for his fellow men who are out of work. He has joined Rep. Augustus Hawkins, D-Calif., in sponsoring a bill calculated to achieve full employment.

It may have a slight flavor of the 1930s, with its provisions to use grants, loans, tax breaks and other fiscal devices to create more jobs. But suddenly the Humphrey-Hawkins bill is given a good chance to pass.

No less than Jimmy Carter is quietly preparing to throw his weight behind the bill. His top assistants have been in touch with aides of Humphrey and Hawkins. The staffs are now meeting daily, and a final agreement is expected in a few days. "The president has personally accelerated the timetable on this," one participant told us.

Such heavyweights as Labor Secretary Ray Marshall, domestic policymaker Stuart Eisenstat and economic adviser Charles Shultze are now involved in the negotiations. Once a tentative agreement is reached, the president will discuss the final details personally with Humphrey and Hawkins.

There remains a major conflict over the bill's goal of driving down unemployment to four percent. Just about everyone who wants to work should be able to get a job, allowing for the constant number between jobs, if the four percent goal can be achieved.

But some White House aides believe the figure may be unrealistically low. "The president doesn't like the idea of being tied to a specific number," one presidential assistant told our associate Howie Kurtz. "He wants to make a good-faith effort to reach the goal without having his hands tied by a rigid timetable."

The bill would provide the monetary means to create more jobs. Federal funds, for example, would be awarded to private companies for needed public works projects. This would be supplemented by public sevice jobs and government training programs.

But if these efforts should fall short of the four percent goal, then the federal government would become the "employer of last resort." It would provide temporary, low-paying jobs to those who can't find work elsewhere.

The White House objects to this provision. "You can't legislate full employment," complained one Carter adviser. "You can't have a legally enforceable plan where an unemployed person can go into court and say, 'Judge, I want a job.'"

Explained another White House official: "First we want to test the idea of large-scale public service jobs." Before the government does any more hiring, he said, the president wants to try out his planned 1.4 million welfare jobs and 200,000 youth jobs.

Congressional backers argued, however, that the "last resort" jobs are not automatic and would be created only if the president and Congress decide they are needed.

The two sides are also negotiating over the role of the Federal Reserve Board, which controls the nation's monetary policy. Under the bill, the Fed would be required to certify to Congress whether its monetary policy will help achieve full employment. But congresssonal liberals believe that the nation's growth is being stymied by the crafty, conservative Fed chairman, Arthur Burns.

"For years, economic policy has been made in the backrooms by Arthur Burns and a few private bankers who sit on the Fed," complained one congressional expert. "This bill would take economic policy out of the backrooms and put it on the floor of Congress."

Agreed one presidential assistant: "Nowhere in the Constitution does it say that bankers shall have a branch of the federal government." But he added: "While we don't mind if Congress conflicts with the Fed, it would be a major political battle for the administration to infringe on the independence of the Fed."

Some of Carter's economic advisers are also worried that the legislation will fuel inflation. "The inflation problem is very real," a White House economist told us.

Humphrey and Hawkins insist, however, that lower unemployment doesn't necessarily lead to more inflation. For each one percent reduction in the jobless rolls, they say, the government saves about $20 billion in unemployment checks, food stamps and other benefits. "This bill will help Carter balance his budget," said a supporter.

A compromise between the two sides, nevertheless, is in the offing. And President Carter will come out fighting for a national commitment to full employment.

Who's News — A big-time corporation lawyer, Milton Handler, is expected to direct a presidential study of the antitrust laws. He was described by Attorney General Griffin Bell as "a superstar in antitrust law." But our files show this same Handler testified twice against the 1975 Antitrust Improvements Act. It turns out that Handler has also represented big corporations in antitrust cases.

Gas controls may be resolved

WASHINGTON (AP) — The politically volatile issue of retaining price controls on natural gas may be resolved in the Senate tonight. After four days of maneuvering, those favoring regulation and those fighting for a removal of the controls have agreed to submit the question to a vote. Advocates of deregulation are predicting victory by a least a four-vote margin while administration allies are saying the vote is too close to call.

Bid to renew arms talks opens

WASHINGTON (AP) — Another attempt is being made to break an 18-month deadlock that has stalled U.S.-Soviet negotiations on a new nuclear arms limitation agreement. Secretary of State Cyrus Vance and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko are heading two delegations which resumed talks at the State Department today. The current Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty will expire in 11 days unless there is a new agreement to replace it.

Gunboats reportedly fired on

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The Palestinian guerrillas claimed today that their coastal guns fired during the night on Israeli gunboats that for six days have been trying to blockade the Palestinian-held port of Tyre, on the south Lebanese coast 12 miles north of the Israeli border. Palestinian officials said the gunboats were not hit and did not return the fire.

Concorde production may end

LONDON (AP) — A House of Commons committee says there's no possibility of selling the Concorde at a profit and production of the supersonic British+French airliner apparently will end next year. The influential Public Accounts Committee said there "appears to be no practical possibility of production beyond the 16 aircraft being authorized" by the two governments.

Death-trial link discounted

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Police say the death of the daughter of the judge in the trial of two men accused of killing newspaper reporter Don Bolles apparently was not connected with the court proceedings.

The casually-clad body of Lynn Marie Thompson, 24, daughter of Maricopa County Superior Court Judge Howard Thompson, was found late Tuesday afternoon in an eastside house.

Judge Thompson is conducting a trial for Max Dunlap, 48, a Phoenix contractor, and James Robison, 55, a Chandler plumber, who are charged with first-degree murder in the June 1976 car-bomb murder of Bolles. The trial was postponed until Monday because of the death.

Miss Thompson's body was discovered in her bedroom, which contained no bed. Police said she chose to sleep on the floor. A .22 caliber rifle was by her side. There was a bullet wound in the right side of her head.

"All the evidence we have is consistent with a self-inflicted wound," said Zuniga, who heads the department's investigations section.

Caravan awaits Bergland

PUEBLO, Colo. (AP) — A 50-tractor caravan of farmers from three states rolled into Pueblo to demonstrate for a guarantee of break-even prices for their crops from the federal government.

The first contingent of tractors was lined up beside Pueblo Municipal Airport where Secretary of Agriculture Robert Bergland was to land later today.

Scores of others tractors were on the way, some on flatbed trailers and some chugging along Interstate 25 at 20 miles an hour, Colorado state police said.

Car caravans also assembled in several Colorado towns Wednesday night for the trip to Pueblo.

The airport meeting was arranged by American Agricultural, a grass-roots group set up two weeks ago by wheat and melon farmers in southeast Colorado. Group leaders said they had contacted farmers in 41 states by Wednesday.

Organizers said they expect 5,000 farmers, including groups from Kansas and Oklahoma, for the meeting with Bergland.

The group, which has no formal membership, is demanding a guarantee that federal price supports will make up any deficit between what they can get for their crops at market and what it costs to raise them. Unless the demand is met, the farmers say they will stop producing and marketing food and buying agricultural equipment and supplies on Dec. 14.

The call for a strike has so far not been supported by any of the established farm organizations.

Poll shows strong opposition

WASHINGTON (AP) — A public opinion poll shows that most American people oppose the Panama Canal treaty, signaling trouble ahead for treaty ratification efforts in the Senate. The poll, commissioned by The Associated Press, found that 50 per cent of adults questioned are against the treaty. Twenty-nine per cent favored the pact, and 21 per cent were undecided.

Lance hometown changes sign

CALHOUN, Ga. (AP) — At 5 p.m. Wednesday the sign on the road to Bert Lance's home town said, "Support Bert. Call the White House." An hour later, after President Carter had announced the budget director's resignation, the sign said, "Welcome Home, Bert Lance." Routed from his top federal job, the former $90-a-week bank teller who became a millionaire and top adviser to the President was still a hero to the local folks.

Radiation rise rated slight

SEATTLE (AP) — Fallout from China's nuclear test caused only a slight rise in radiation in the Northwest and posed little health danger, federal officials say.

The air mass carrying the fallout was expected to move northeastward and reach the Great Lakes region today and the East Coast on Friday.

Mid-morning radiation checks Wednesday in Seattle and Juneau, Alaska, showed no increase in ground radiation, but afternoon checks at Anchorage and Portland, Ore., indicated there was some rise in radioactivity.

The Environmental Protection Agency in Washington, D.C., had warned that if some radioactive material were caught in rainfall, it could contaminate pasture land in Washington, Oregon, most of Idaho and parts of northern California.

A regional EPA spokesman said the agency and the Food and Drug Administration would test milk samples in Seattle, Anchorage and Portland even though it appears no problem exists.

Knievel accused of assault

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Motorcycle stuntman Evel Knievel, who apparently was en route to surrender to police, was arrested for investigation of assault with a deadly weapon in an alleged attack on a 20th Century Fox executive, authorities said.

Knievel was released late Wednesday night after posting $1,000 bond. He was scheduled to be arraigned next Wednesday in West Los Angeles Municipal Court.

Sheldon Saltman, 46, was treated for compound fractures of the left arm and a broken right wrist after the incident earlier Wednesday, authorities said.

The vice president of the telecommunications division of Fox Studios told police that Knievel and an unidentified man confronted him outside the studio commissary. He said Knievel hit him with a baseball bat, according to police.

Mark Erickson, an aide to Saltman, said Saltman used to be Knievel's publicity agent and wrote the book "Evel Knievel on Tour." The book told the story of the much-publicized but ill-fated Snake River Canyon stunt which Knievel failed to accomplish.

The influential Public Accounts Committee said there "appears to be no practical possibility of production beyond the 16 aircraft being authorized" by the two governments.

Death-trial link discounted

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Police say the death of the daughter of the judge in the trial of two men accused of killing newspaper reporter Don Bolles apparently was not connected with the court proceedings.

The casually-clad body of Lynn Marie Thompson, 24, daughter of Maricopa County Superior Court Judge Howard Thompson, was found late Tuesday afternoon in an eastside house.

Judge Thompson is conducting a trial for Max Dunlap, 48, a Phoenix contractor, and James Robison, 55, a Chandler plumber, who are charged with first-degree murder in the June 1976 car-bomb murder of Bolles. The trial was postponed until Monday because of the death.

Miss Thompson's body was discovered in her bedroom, which contained no bed. Police said she chose to sleep on the floor. A .22 caliber rifle was by her side. There was a bullet wound in the right side of her head.

"All the evidence we have is consistent with a self-inflicted wound," said Zuniga, who heads the department's investigations section.

Caravan awaits Bergland

PUEBLO, Colo. (AP) — A 50-tractor caravan of farmers from three states rolled into Pueblo to demonstrate for a guarantee of break-even prices for their crops from the federal government.

The first contingent of tractors was lined up beside Pueblo Municipal Airport where Secretary of Agriculture Robert Bergland was to land later today.

Scores of others tractors were on the way, some on flatbed trailers and some chugging along Interstate 25 at 20 miles an hour, Colorado state police said.

Car caravans also assembled in several Colorado towns Wednesday night for the trip to Pueblo.

The airport meeting was arranged by American Agricultural, a grass-roots group set up two weeks ago by wheat and melon farmers in southeast Colorado. Group leaders said they had contacted farmers in 41 states by Wednesday.

Organizers said they expect 5,000 farmers, including groups from Kansas and Oklahoma, for the meeting with Bergland.

The group, which has no formal membership, is demanding a guarantee that federal price supports will make up any deficit between what they can get for their crops at market and what it costs to raise them. Unless the demand is met, the farmers say they will stop producing and marketing food and buying agricultural equipment and supplies on Dec. 14.

The call for a strike has so far not been supported by any of the established farm organizations.

Poll shows strong opposition

WASHINGTON (AP) — A public opinion poll shows that most American people oppose the Panama Canal treaty, signaling trouble ahead for treaty ratification efforts in the Senate. The poll, commissioned by The Associated Press, found that 50 per cent • adults questioned are against the treaty. Twenty-nine per cent favored the pact, and 21 per cent were undecided.

Lance hometown changes sign

CALHOUN, Ga. (AP) — At 5 p.m. Wednesday the sign on the road to Bert Lance's home town said, "Support Bert. Call the White House." An hour later, after President Carter had announced the budget director's resignation, the sign said, "Welcome Home, Bert Lance." Routed from his top federal job, the former $90-a-week bank teller who became a millionaire and top adviser to the President was still a hero to the local folks.

Radiation rise rated slight

The air mass carrying the fallout was expected to move northeastward and reach the Great Lakes region today and the East Coast on Friday.

Mid-morning radiation checks Wednesday in Seattle and Juneau, Alaska, showed no increase in ground radiation, but afternoon checks at Anchorage and Portland, Ore., indicated there was some rise in radioactivity.

The Environmental Protection Agency in Washington, D.C., had warned that if some radioactive material were caught in rainfall, it could contaminate pasture land in Washington, Oregon, most of Idaho and parts of northern California.

A regional EPA spokesman said the agency and the Food and Drug Administration would test milk samples in Seattle, Anchorage and Portland even though it appears no problem exists.

Knievel accused of assault

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Motorcycle stuntman Evel Knievel, who apparently was en route to surrender to police, was arrested for investigation of assault with a deadly weapon in an alleged attack on a 20th Century Fox executive, authorities said.

Knievel was released late Wednesday night after posting $1,000 bond. He was scheduled to be arraigned next Wednesday in West Los Angeles Municipal Court.

The vice president of the telecommunications division of Fox Studios told police that Knievel and an unidentified man confronted him outside the studio commissary. He said Knievel hit him with a baseball bat, according to police.

Mark Erickson, an aide to Saltman, said Saltman used to be Knievel's publicity agent and wrote the book "Evel Knievel on Tour." The book told the story of the much-publicized but ill-fated Snake River Canyon stunt which Knievel failed to accomplish.

Burlison announces EDA awards for 10th District

WASHINGTON, D. C.— U. S. Rep. Bill D. Burlison (D-Mo.) today announced that the Economic Development Administration has approved grants for the 10th District of Missouri to help build public facilities and create jobs in areas of high unemployment.

Burlison said funds for the projects are being made avaliable under provisions of the Public Works Employment Act of 1977--a major element of President Carter's economic stimulus package.

The Local Public Works program provides $4 billion to fund projects of units of State and local government, including school districts.

The Congressman noted that the projects approved by EDA were selected for consideration by local officials under planning targets assigned by the agency. Planning targets are based on unemployment rates and the actual number of unemployed persons in a community.

| PROJECT | GRANT AMOUNT | PURPOSE |
|---|---|---|
| City of Herculaneum | $ 70,000 | Construction of Street Department maintenance Building |
| City of East Prairie | 161,000 | New Administration Building |
| Doniphan R-1 School RVII | 55,100 | Renovate Middle School |
| City of Farmington | 26,330 | Paving Streets |
| City of Illmo | 101,000 | Sanitary Sewers |
| Clearwater R-1 School District | 187,000 | Additions and conservation measures at Clearwater High School, Piedmont |

Burlison said that while the EDA program goals are to provide an immediate economic stimulus through the construction of capital facilities, most of the projects will provide additional long-term benefits in support of economic and community development.

Woman found guilty in death of daughter

ST. LOUIS (AP) -- A 35-year-old St. Louis woman has been found guilty of second-degree murder in the shooting death of her 13-year-old daughter last year.

A St. Louis Circuit Court jury deliberated more than five hours Wednesday before convicting Mrs. Elvera Russell.

Mrs. Russell told the opening session that the shooting death of her daughter, Shirley Jean Jackson, 13, last year was an accident and that she disposed of the body in the sewer on the advice of her boyfriend, Michael Long, 35.

Other witnesses, however, told the court that Mrs. Russell had been angry with her daughter because she had had sexual relations with several neighborhood men, including Long.

Mrs. Russell said she was only joking with her daughter when a rifle she was holding discharged, fatally wounding the girl.

Long, who pleaded guilty to a charge of accessory after the fact for helping Mrs. Russell dispose of rhe body has been sentenced to two years in prison.

In his closing argument Wednesday, Assistant Circuit Attorney Sam F. Bertolet said there had been "bad blood" between Mrs. Russell and her daughter.

Ann helps fight against child pornography crime

Dear Ann Landers: I am writing to thank you for the public service you rendered in the fight against child pornography. Because of your recent column on the subject, we received a number of calls and letters from citizens with information about individuals engaged in such acuvity.

Investigation of one such call led us to a highly placed professional person who, incredibly enough, works with young children. We learned that he has been engaging these youngsters in pornographic activity for quite some time and we are hopeful our investigation will end in a conviction.

By educating your readers to this reprehensible criminal activity and alerting them as to whom to contact you have performed a service of enormous magnitude. -- Ilana Diamond Rovner, Chief, Public Protection Unit, United States Attorney, Northern District of Illinois.

Dear Chief: Thank you for our kind words. I'm delighted to learn that the column was effective. Adult pornography is a bore. Anyone who enjoys such garbage as steady entertainment must have strudel in the noodle. "Kid porn" is not just pornography. It's child abuse, and anyone involved in that scummy racket should get the maximum. Good luck on the conviction.

Dear Ann: You are probably fed up with letters from C.B.'ers but I hope you'll find room for one more.

"K.A.I.D. -- 7777 North Carolina" should bone up before he calls "Mad In Illinois" ignorant. Power or no power, sunspots or no sunspots, it's illegal to communicate more than 150 miles from your station. C.B. radios are not toys, but that's how the "Skippers" use them when they take an ego trip to see how far away they can get to say nothing.

When you want to talk to someone locally and all you can hear is the same ratchet-mouth bellowing, "Have a fine day!" it's enough to ruin yours.

The problem of illegal hogs doesn't mean anything until you are stranded in a car with a CB at your fingertips and you can't get through to ask for help because the "skippers" have all the channels tied up -- including the emergency. And how sweet it is to be watching TV and all of a sudden some "Good Buddy" turns up the power so high it knocks out your picture and the sound goes dead -- but you can hear him loud and clear -- calling Canada.

Ask the FCC why they aren't doing their job of enforcing the laws, especially when the "skippers" are kind enough to give their addresses over the CB. -- Also Mad.

Dear Also: O.K. I will. Dear F.C.C.: Why aren't you doing your job? Since this CB flack has come up in my column, dozens of people have posed the question. If you can come up with an answer I'll print it.

Dear Ann Landers: Recently you advised everyone to bathe or shower daily. I haven't taken a bath or a shower for three years and I'm fit as a fiddle and smell like a rose. The secret? I rub coconut oil on myself every day. It prevents sunburn, too. -- Two-Gun Pete From Puerto Vallarta

Dear Pete: Did you say three years? Thanks for letting me know where you are. I don't think I'll go there.

Erma's junk food kiddies

By Erma Bombeck

Do you know what is the biggest complaint children have against their parents?

According to a recent survey, 58 per cent of the children interviewed resented the fact that parents make them eat food they don't like.

In all fairness, I have to tell you that I gave birth to children with unusual diets. They tolerate only hot dogs that cost $1.25 in the ballpark, hamburgers one fifteenth of an inch thick, asphyxiated by secret sauce, charred marshmallows speared on a bent coat hanger, and anything left under a car seat that has touched a dirty hand.

They refuse to eat anything they haven't danced to on T V.

Okay, so I lied when I told them it wass good for them. I lied when I told them it would make them big and strong. And I lied when I said there were one million children in Argentina waiting in line for their Brussels sprouts.

But I did not stretch the truth one bit when I told them to clean up their plates – they were killing their mother. The way I licked their plates clean after every meal, you'd have thought I was sired by a cocker spaniel. I drank milk out of galsses that stuck to my lips, pork chops that have been used as gavels, whipped potatoes that had served as dams for gravy, and vegetables so cold you could taste them.

And did they appreciate it? They did not. We have an entire generation of kids growing up (58 per cent to be exact) who regard Waldorf Salad as a form of punishment. My kids never shaped up until I threatened,

"You keep that up and I'll put you to bed WITH SUPPER!"

Thanks to my diligence and eating all their proper foods I was the one who grew up to be big and strong. One day, I turned on the disposal and as the motor whirred around noisily, I heard one of my children's playmates shout, "Hey, Andy, I think I hear your mother calling."

From that day forward, I gave up cleaning my children's plates. The first time I initiated my new philosophy I said to my son, "If you don't eat this, I'm going to throw it out."

"That's not much of a recommendation," he said.

Now they tell me.

Cards, Expos split twinbill

MONTREAL (AP) — Wayne Twitchell, one of the men the Montreal Expos are counting on for starting pitching rotation next season, hopes 1978 will hold a little more luck for him than did the 1977 National League baseball campaign.

Twitchell, acquired by the Expos June 15th, fired a nifty four-hitter Wednesday night leading Montreal to a 4-2 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals and a split of a doubleheader.

In the nightcap, Lou Brock hit an inside-the-park home run to cap a three-run outburst in the fourth inning and the Cardinals went on to defeat the Expos 8-2.

"Up until the middle of August, it seemed that everything was going wrong," said Twitchell, 6-10, the winner of six of his 11 games with the Expos. "They weren't hitting the ball that hard against me, but it seemed the ball was finding places to fall in.

"When I was at Philadelphia at the start of the year, I went 32 innings without them scoring a run. I was happy there when I got no decision. But I'm not going to start thinking about next season until this one is over."

Twitchell struck out eight and walked four in pitching his second complete game of the season. His only other complete start was a 3-0 loss to the Giants in San Francisco in the first game of a doubleheader July 24th.

He got offensive support from Dave Cash and Warren Cromartie who delivered run-scoring doubles.

Cash scored the game's first run when he doubled, went to third on an infield out and scored when St. Louis catcher Dave Rader threw the ball into center field trying to stop Andre Dawson's steal of second.

Rader's sacrifice fly in the second and first home run of the season in the fifth put St. Louis ahead 2-1 before Cash scored Cromartie with his 40th double of the year in the bottom of the fifth after Cromartie singled and stole second.

Gary Carter drove in the go-ahead run in the sixth when he hit into a force play as Dawson crossed the plate and Carter scored on Cromartie's 40th double.

Sikeston-Charleston rivalry— 'It's bigger than both of us'

BY DALE FORBIS
Daily Standard Sports Writer

"It's bigger than both of us."

In the next few lines, we'll try to convince all who read this article that those first words should be on the mind of each and every player, coach and fan who attends tomorrow night's football game between the Charleston Bluejays and Sikeston Bulldogs.

Nearly 69 years ago, on November 6, 1908, the Sikeston Bulldogs and charleston Bluejays played in the first recorded high school football game in this area. Sikeston won 10-5 (touchdowns were five points each) and has won a vast majority of the 91 games since. But, each and every meeting between the two fierce rivals has been filled with deep emotion on both sides and a determination to win that wasn't always matched by the ability to do the same.

Charleston has beaten Sikeston more times than any other Bulldog opponent (25), but the Sikeston teams own 62 wins over their Bluejay counterparts. Four games have ended with the frustration of a tie, but the last time was 42 years ago.

Words can hardly describe the importance attached to this historic meeting throughout the years. Countless times the meeting has decided a conference championship, many times with an unexpected ending. Many coaches, on both sides, have said, "The worst thing to be when facing Charleston - Sikeston is the favorite."

Charleston fielded one of its finest teams in the school history during the season of 1939, never allowing more than one touchdown in any game until it met Sikeston in the annual Thanksgiving game between the two. Sikeston enterred with a 4-4 record, but exited with a 19-2 win, described by many as one of the biggest upsets in history.

Bulldog teams won the first seven meetings between the nearby schools. Then, the two squads split the next 36 meetings. Following Charleston's 6-0 win in the first game between the two in 1933, Sikeston has ruled the roost since. The Dogs have nabbed 37 of the last 45 games, one ending in a tie. After the Jays beat the Bulldogs in both '46 and '47. Sikeston defeated their rivals 17 years in a row.

In the last 10 years, Sikeston has seven wins.

In recent years the difference in enrollment of the two schools has become a factor, with Sikeston benefitting from greater depth and a more stable program. Even through the weak years at SHS (1970-74), while Sikeston was winning just 12 and losing 35 times, the Dogs still stayed even with their opponents.

The tradition, laced with animosity and hard feelings at times, is a long one. The confrontations, a vast majority of the time, were between two teams that were untouched by any other squad. For a 31-year period Sikeston and Charleston (one or the other) had at least a share of the conference crown.

The 93 total meetings are certainly close to a record for high school play, if not a record-setting number. For many seasons Sikeston and Charleston met twice -- one regular season game and an annual "Turkey Day" game on Thanksgiving. The last Thanksgiving game between the two was played in 1964.

In 1916 the Jays and Dogs played each other three times and the war year of 1918 was the only season that the two didn't meet.

Some highlights:

In 1911 only one team got inside the Bulldogs' 15-yard line during a season that saw the defense unscored upon. That team was Charleston, during a tight, 3-0 game.

Charleston's first defeat of a Sikeston team came in 1913, by a 14-3 score. It was Sikeston's only loss of the year, although the two teams did play to a scoreless tie later in the season.

Sikeston and Charleston met for the Semo football championship in 1915. Sikeston won 20-7.

Sikeston scored twice in the last six minutes to beat the Jays 19-13 the next year.

A crowd of over three thousand watched Charleston ruin Sikeston's perfect season in 1922 by a 3-0 score.

Dick Swaim rushed for over 250 yards and Sikeston ripped the Jays 27-13 to cap an undefeated season in 1927.

Charleston got to Sikeston's two-foot line in the third period, but couldn't score. Rain poured down during the game and neither side threatened otherwise. It ended 0-0.

From 1928 through 1931 Sikeston didn't score against a Charleston team, a total of seven wins in a row for Charleston.

"Dutch" Wyatt's 72-yard run gave the Jays a 7-0 win in '38.

Sikeston won in 1940 when a snap was fumbled by Charleston and it rolled out of the endzone. The Dogs prevailed 2-0.

Charleston gained only 22 yards while losing 28-6 in '43.

Charleston defeated Sikeston 6-0 for the conference title in 1947. It was the last time Charleston won over the Dogs until 1966.

The biggest point margin between the two was in 1951 when the Bulldogs, in the midst of a winning string, belted the Jays 68-6. Charleston's biggest margin came in 1929, 35-0.

Kenny Davis blocked an extra-point in the fourth quarter to give Sikeston a 14-13 win and the Semo conference title in 1961.

Ralph Mitchell and Greg Johnson ran over, around and through the Sikeston defenders for a 32-7 romp in 1974.

After losing 18 of their first 20 starts under head coach Terry Smith, the Bulldogs started a string the other way with a 21-8 win in 1975. Since that time Bulldog teams have won 18 and lost just three.

There you have it. Are you convinced? Tomorrow night at 7:30 in southern Charleston, near I-57, the two oldest high school teams in this area of the state will tangle for the 93rd time. It might be worth the drive to see history in the making.

Cards, Expos split twinbill

MONTREAL (AP) — Wayne Twitchell, one of the men the Montreal Expos are counting on for starting pitching rotation next season, hopes 1978 will hold a little more luck for him than did the 1977 National League baseball campaign.

Twitchell, acquired by the Expos June 15th, fired a nifty four-hitter Wednesday night leading Montreal to a 4-2 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals and a split of a doubleheader.

In the nightcap, Lou Brock hit an inside-the-park home run to cap a three-run outburst in the fourth inning and the Cardinals went on to defeat the Expos 8-2.

"Up until the middle of August, it seemed that everything was going wrong," said Twitchell, 6-10, the winner of six of his 11 games with the Expos. "They weren't hitting the ball that hard against me, but it seemed the ball was finding places to fall in.

"When I was at Philadelphia at the start of the year, I went 32 innings without them scoring a run. I was happy there when I got no decision. But I'm not going to start thinking about next season until this one is over."

Twitchell struck out eight and walked four in pitching his second complete game of the season. His only other complete start was a 3-0 loss to the Giants in San Francisco in the first game of a doubleheader July 24th.

He got offensive support from Dave Cash and Warren Cromartie who delivered run-scoring doubles.

Cash scored the game's first run when he doubled, went to third on an infield out and scored when St. Louis catcher Dave Rader threw the ball into center field trying to stop Andre Dawson's steal of second.

Rader's sacrifice fly in the second and first home run of the season in the fifth put St. Louis ahead 2-1 before Cash scored Cromartie with his 40th double of the year in the bottom of the fifth after Cromartie singled and stole second.

Gary Carter drove in the go-ahead run in the sixth when he hit into a force play as Dawson crossed the plate and Carter scored on Cromartie's 40th double.

Sikeston-Charleston rivalry— 'It's bigger than both of us'

BY DALE FORBIS
Daily Standard Sports Writer

"It's bigger than both of us."

In the next few lines, we'll try to convince all who read this article that those first words should be on the mind of each and every player, coach and fan who attends tomorrow night's football game between the Charleston Bluejays and Sikeston Bulldogs.

Nearly 69 years ago, on November 6, 1908, the Sikeston Bulldogs and charleston Bluejays played in the first recorded high school football game in this area. Sikeston won 10-5 (touchdowns were five points each) and has won a vast majority of the 91 games since. But, each and every meeting between the two fierce rivals has been filled with deep emotion on both sides and a determination to win that wasn't always matched by the ability to do the same.

Charleston has beaten Sikeston more times than any other Bulldog opponent (25), but the Sikeston teams own 62 wins over their Bluejay counterparts. Four games have ended with the frustration of a tie, but the last time was 42 years ago.

Words can hardly describe the importance attached to this historic meeting throughout the years. Countless times the meeting has decided a conference championship, many times with an unexpected ending. Many coaches, on both sides, have said, "The worst thing to be when facing Charleston - Sikeston is the favorite."

Charleston fielded one of its finest teams in the school history during the season of 1939, never allowing more than one touchdown in any game until it met Sikeston in the annual Thanksgiving game between the two. Sikeston enterred with a 4-4 record, but exited with a 19-2 win, described by many as one of the biggest upsets in history.

Bulldog teams won the first seven meetings between the nearby schools. Then, the two squads split the next 36 meetings. Following Charleston's 6-0 win in the first game between the two in 1933, Sikeston has ruled the roost since. The Dogs have nabbed 37 of the last 45 games, one ending in a tie. After the Jays beat the Bulldogs in both '46 and '47. Sikeston defeated their rivals 17 years in a row.

In the last 10 years, Sikeston has seven wins.

In recent years the difference in enrollment of the two schools has become a factor, with Sikeston benefitting from greater depth and a more stable program. Even through the weak years at SHS (1970-74), while Sikeston was winning just 12 and losing 35 times, the Dogs still stayed even with their opponents.

The tradition, laced with animosity and hard feelings at times, is a long one. The confrontations, a vast majority of the time, were between two teams that were untouched by any other squad. For a 31-year period Sikeston and Charleston (one or the other) had at least a share of the conference crown.

The 93 total meetings are certainly close to a record for high school play, if not a record-setting number. For many seasons Sikeston and Charleston met twice -- one regular season game and an annual "Turkey Day" game on Thanksgiving. The last Thanksgiving game between the two was played in 1964.

Royals clinch tie for west flag by beating Minnesota 10-5

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Today could be the most profitable day off of the season for the Kansas City Royals.

Because tonight they could be champions of the American League West for the second straight season.

"We beat 'em ourselves that's what I'm proud of. We didn't wait around for someone else to lose," said John Mayberry. "We did it ourselves."

The Royals, by virtue of a 10-5 whipping of the Minnesota Twins Wednesday night, are assured of at least a tie for the division championship.

They took it easy today, but their playoff berth will become official tonight if second-place Texas loses to California on the West Coast.

A year ago, Kansas City nearly wilted in September, clinching the championship in the last week of the season when Oakland lost. There was talk the Royals "backed" into the title.

"Last we kept hoping for someone else to lose. This year we didn't mess around with that stuff," said Mayberry. "We'd just go out and win."

A mild understatement. The victory over the Twins was Kansas City's 20th in 21 games and 31st in 35.

"I would say that's about the best you could do," agreed Whitey Herzog, Royals manager. "You can't expect to do it too often."

As late as a month ago, Kansas City was locked in a four-team scramble for first place. Now the Royals own an 11-game cushion.

And, to a man they are not surprised. The potential, they claim, was always there.

"Everybody else is shutting down and we're still pouring it on," said Jim Colborn, the right-hander who raised his record to 18-13 with the victory over Minnesota. "It really does separate the teams, September really does."

Marty Pattin claimed pitching and defense made the difference in the Royals' stretch drive.

"From the time we really started (mid-June), we played 73 percent baseball," Pattin said. "To do that you have to do things right. Sure, we had some luck. But when we put things together, we put everything together. I'm not surprised. I thought we had the team to do it."

The Royals even made a believer out of Minnesota Manager Gene Mauch, who had forecast a close race all the way.

"I wasn't expecting anybody to pull away like the Royals did," Mauch said. "My whole contention was that the Royals played to their full potential last year when they won 91 games. I had no idea any team in this division would win 100 games."

Kansas City racked up its 95th victory on the strength of a six-run seventh inning against Minnesota. The Royals held a 4-3 lead when Darrell Porter touched off the decisive rally with a two-run homer. The loss went to Twins starter Dave Johnson, 2-5.

Now, barring a Texas miracle, the Royals are awaiting the playoffs. And, hopefully, the World Series.

"I'd like to play New York because I'd like to beat New York," said Pattin, when asked if he had a playoff preference. "But it's just nice to be able to have a choice.

"Now I just want to get into the Series. That's what it's all about. You can fight and play all year but until you get into the Series, it doesn't mean a thing."

Could wrap it up in Anaheim tonight

Unfortunately for long-suffering fans of the California Angels, the corks won't be popping in the home team's clubhouse.

Kansas City, idle today, needs one victory or one loss by the Texas Rangers to capture its second straight American League West Division championship. If the Rangers beat the Angels in the finale of a four-game series here tonight, the Royals would celebrate with a victory Friday evening when they open a weekend series against the Angels.

The Rangers avoided elimination with an easy 9-1 victory over California Wednesday night. It was a quiet evening for the Angels except for a home run by Ron Jackson and an eighth inning fight after pitcher Balor Moore hit Ken Henderson with a pitch following homers by Toby Harrah and Willie Horton.

Righter captures Kennett tourney

KENNETT – New Hamburg Righter Trucking won the Kennett Invitational Fastpitch Softball Tournament over this past weekend. They won five out of the six games they played and had the honor of having Bill Reidd named Most Valuable Player while Orville Enderle was tagged as Most Valuable Pitcher.

The championship round of the best two-out-of-three featured New Hamburg against Coronet of Kennett. Coronet won the first battle by virtue of an extra-inning 5-4 triumph.

In the final game of the tourney, Bill Reid socked a homer, double, and single to spark Righter to a 6-4 victory.

Righter reached the finals by winning their first four games, the first an 8-0 over Union City. Larry Burden was the standout in that game as he blasted a grand slam to provide all the offense needed.

In the second game, Righter downed Holly's Island 6-1 and then beat Vanduser 10-0 with Burden socking another homer.

New Hamburg then beat Coronet in the first of three meetings by the score of 6-1.

Manager Bob Kindle wishes to thank all the fans that have followed his Righter club and the Semo Fastpitch League as a whole.

NAZARETH, Pa. — Formula I Race driver Mario Andretti said he will honor his commitment to the Lotus racing team until the end of 1978, passing up an offer to join Ferrari.

"I'm staying," Andretti said of his decision to stay with Lotus instead of jumping to Ferrari, the prestigious team which offered him a spot. He said he entered the agreement with Lotus earlier this year.

ORLANDO, Fla. — Former manager Frank Lucchesi of the Texas Rangers filed a civil damage against Lenny Randle, the baseball player who punched him in an exhibition game in March.

James E. Shepherd, Lucchesi's Orlando attorney, filed the suit in circuit court and said that papers would be served on Randle by the sheriff in New York, where the infielder plays for the New York Mets.

Lucchesi will reportedly seek $200,000 in damages.

Royals clinch tie for west flag by beating Minnesota 10-5

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Today could be the most profitable day off of the season for the Kansas City Royals.

Because tonight they could be champions of the American League West for the second straight season.

"We beat 'em ourselves that's what I'm proud of. We didn't wait around for someone else to lose," said John Mayberry. "We did it ourselves."

The Royals, by virtue of a 10-5 whipping of the Minnesota Twins Wednesday night, are assured of at least a tie for the division championship.

They took it easy today, but their playoff berth will become official tonight if second-place Texas loses to California on the West Coast.

A year ago, Kansas City nearly wilted in September, clinching the championship in the last week of the season when Oakland lost. There was talk the Royals "backed" into the title.

"Last we kept hoping for someone else to lose. This year we didn't mess around with that stuff," said Mayberry. "We'd just go out and win."

A mild understatement. The victory over the Twins was Kansas City's 20th in 21 games and 31st in 35.

"I would say that's about the best you could do," agreed Whitey Herzog, Royals manager. "You can't expect to do it too often."

As late as a month ago, Kansas City was locked in a four-team scramble for first place. Now the Royals own an 11-game cushion.

And, to a man they are not surprised. The potential, they claim, was always there.

"Everybody else is shutting down and we're still pouring it on," said Jim Colborn, the right-hander who raised his record to 18-13 with the victory over Minnesota. "It really does separate the teams, September really does."

Marty Pattin claimed pitching and defense made the difference in the Royals' stretch drive.

"From the time we really started (mid-June), we played 73 percent baseball," Pattin said. "To do that you have to do things right. Sure, we had some luck. But when we put things together, we put everything together. I'm not surprised. I thought we had the team to do it."

The Royals even made a believer out of Minnesota Manager Gene Mauch, who had forecast a close race all the way.

"I wasn't expecting anybody to pull away like the Royals did," Mauch said. "My whole contention was that the Royals played to their full potential last year when they won 91 games. I had no idea any team in this division would win 100 games."

Kansas City racked up its 95th victory on the strength of a six-run seventh inning against Minnesota. The Royals held a 4-3 lead when Darrell Porter touched off the decisive rally with a two-run homer. The loss went to Twins starter Dave Johnson, 2-5.

Now, barring a Texas miracle, the Royals are awaiting the playoffs. And, hopefully, the World Series.

"I'd like to play New York because I'd like to beat New York," said Pattin, when asked if he had a playoff preference. "But it's just nice to be able to have a choice.

"Now I just want to get into the Series. That's what it's all about. You can fight and play all year but until you get into the Series, it doesn't mean a thing."

Could wrap it up in Anaheim tonight

Unfortunately for long-suffering fans of the California Angels, the corks won't be popping in the home team's clubhouse.

Kansas City, idle today, needs one victory or one loss by the Texas Rangers to capture its second straight American League West Division championship. If the Rangers beat the Angels in the finale of a four-game series here tonight, the Royals would celebrate with a victory Friday evening when they open a weekend series against the Angels.

The Rangers avoided elimination with an easy 9-1 victory over California Wednesday night. It was a quiet evening for the Angels except for a home run by Ron Jackson and an eighth inning fight after pitcher Balor Moore hit Ken Henderson with a pitch following homers by Toby Harrah and Willie Horton.

Righter captures Kennett tourney

KENNETT – New Hamburg Righter Trucking won the Kennett Invitational Fastpitch Softball Tournament over this past weekend. They won five out of the six games they played and had the honor of having Bill Reidd named Most Valuable Player while Orville Enderle was tagged as Most Valuable Pitcher.

The championship round of the best two-out-of-three featured New Hamburg against Coronet of Kennett. Coronet won the first battle by virtue of an extra-inning 5-4 triumph.

In the final game of the tourney, Bill Reid socked a homer, double, and single to spark Righter to a 6-4 victory.

Righter reached the finals by winning their first four games, the first an 8-0 over Union City. Larry Burden was the standout in that game as he blasted a grand slam to provide all the offense needed.

In the second game, Righter downed Holly's Island 6-1 and then beat Vanduser 10-0 with Burden socking another homer.

New Hamburg then beat Coronet in the first of three meetings by the score of 6-1.

Manager Bob Kindle wishes to thank all the fans that have followed his Righter club and the Semo Fastpitch League as a whole.

Sports Fillers

Patients get rebates for inadequate care

This hospital guarantees its service

By Tom Tiede

FINDLAY, Ohio — (NEA) — Three years ago Blanchard Valley Hospital was in deep distress. It had been sued for negligence thrice in 24 months, once for a stinging $150,000, and there was administrative worry that the worst was yet to come. Something had to be done. Something was: the hospital began to guarantee its services.

Guaranteed medical care? Blanchard Valley physicians scoffed at the notion, the hospital board trembled with apprehension, but the idea took root. Proponents argued that if services were guaranteed staff efficiency would naturally increase; besides, patients receiving in-house rebates for complaints would be less likely to run to court.

Thus late in 1974 the deed was done. Hospital customers began receiving a printed promise that most hospital services were henceforth on a money back guarantee. Though the institution could not assure "the results of your medical care . . . we do guarantee that the services you receive will be performed to your satisfaction."

And so they are. Today Blanchard Valley's nursing, food, maid and ancillary services must meet standards established by patients. If not, and if the consumer notifies the hospital within 24 hours of service execution, accounts are credited with "an appropriate amount which represents the cost of the service in question."

It's not only revolutionary, it's working. Hospital administrator William Ruse, who initiated this first-in-the-nation procedure, says that early fears of "hordes of complaining patients" were fortunately exaggerated. Ruse says Blanchard has had three dozen complaints in two and a half years, and less than $400 has been rebated.

Many complainants have not even bothered asking for compensation. A patient who said her medication did not work, and that she was not allowed enough sleep, was satisfied just to be able to formalize her gripes. She also said her doctor was curt, and she was not getting any better, but she felt no need to invoke the guarantee.

Even when patients have asked for money back, the amounts have been small. The largest rebate to date was $70 for a patient who said she was medicated for surgery before the consent papers were completed. Otherwise there has been a $2 rebate to cover a hair found in a food tray; and $5.49 was given a patient who had an inoperable TV.

A few of the complaints have been questionable. A man with a sunburn said it was a drug reaction, and had to be given $20. Another patient got $1.60 for a meal that was a few minutes lates. Generally, however, the grumps have been legitimate; only one request for rebate has been turned down, that one filed a month after the violation.

Ruse says the moderate reaction of patients is no surprise to him. "People aren't as bad as we may fear. I think they know we've opened up communications with them, and that we are trying to do everything we can to satisfy them." A mutual trust has therefore been created, Ruse adds; each side agrees not to gouge the other.

The trust has not been developed solely because of the guaranteed service program. In the name of better communications, Ruse has also instituted a plan to humanize patients. The appendectomy in room 335 is now Mr. Smith, and the coronary in the emergency ward has become Mrs. Jones. Isolated numbers sue, Ruse believes, people don't.

What's more, Blanchard Valley's patient communications are kept open around the clock. Each customer has a phone, called the "Aspirin Line," and is invited to call any staff member or administrator for any reason at any time. Ruse once got a 3 a.m. buzz from a patient who wanted to dictate a church bulletin; a stenographer was dispatched.

Ruse admits that some hospital employees are less than delighted with the early morning calls. He says the doctors especially have been slow to accept the new order of things — "They still think it's a gimmick." Some nurses also grumble, arguing that they can't be all things to all patients and shouldn't be expected to be.

Yet Ruse has kept the lid on staff rebellion by insuring that employees will profit from greater efficiency. Twelve thousand dollars is budgeted each year for complaint rebates, and the unused portion is then divided equally for staff bonuses. So far the staff has shared $24,000; not riches, but formerly there were no bonuses at all.

At St. Francis Medical Center

Patient transfer exercise set for Sunday

CAPE GIRARDEAU — A ceremony and patient transfer exercise to recognize the new Bi-State Emergency Medical Services designation at St. Francis Medical Center will begin at Sunday at the St. Francis Heliport site on the Medical Center grounds.

"St. Francis has been working with Charles Loftis, EMS Coordinator and Robert E. Motti, Regional EMS Coordinator of the Illinois Department of Public Health, Division of Emergency Medical Services to review their criteria for a EMS-Trauma Center. After a review of our emergency department , critical care unit, surgery, radiology and pathology, it was determined that we qualify as a Bi-State Comprehensive Emergency Service Center", stated John J. Keusenkothen, Administrator. "This designation further strengthens the regional medical center concept to which St. Francis is dedicated."

During the afternoon's program, a MAST (Military Assistance to Safety and Traffic) helicopter fromFort Campbell, Kentucky will give an actual demonstration of a patient transfer. Lt. Albert Vaiani, assistant MAST officer and Keith Junas, by stretcher from the emergency room to the helicopter, secure and stabilize the patient for takeoff, execute maneuvers and return to the Heliport for transfer back to the medical center. Lt. Vaiani and his crew will then open the hilicopter for the public to view.

At the same time, George Rouse and the Cape County Ambulance crew will have one of the local ambulances availble for public inspection. The Illinois Department of Transportation helicopter used for patient transfer will be on display, also.

With the installation of the heliport at St. Francis, helicopters from Missouri, Illinois and Fort Campbell, Kentucky will be able to pick up victims of plane crashes, river, railway and auto accidents and transport them to the Medical Center rapidly. The helicopter will also be used to transport patients from St. Francis when it is critical that the time away from the hospital setting be minimal

The heliport will be located on the east side of the medical center. It was carefully chosen for accessibility to the ambulance entrance. The FAA has worked closely with St. Francis to assure that the site is both air and ground safe.

The designation also means that the ambulance attendants and other health care agencies in the four-state area will be knowledgeable about the exact level of care rendered the critically injured trauma patient at St. Francis. This knowledge will enable the EMS personnel in the field to assess a patient's condition and transport him to the appropriate center for treatment. It is an important criteria in the successful treatment of the critically injured that their care begin at the earliest moment with as limited movement and transportation as possible.

Ambulances from the four-state area will soon have the additional capability of maintaining radio contact with the Bi-State Emergency Medical services Center at St. Francis Medical Center where physicians are on duty 24-hours-a-day, seven-days-a-week. The new base station uses the radio frequency 155.34. This frequency has been designated as the HOSPITAL EMERGENCY SYSTEM by the Bureau of Emergency Services, Missouri Division of Health. Through this means the ambulance attendants can keep in close contact with the St. Francis Bi-State EMS Center. Such contact insures that the medical personnel, additional staff and all equipment are ready for the patient upon arrival.

Earlier this year, a 220-hour emergency medical training program geared to enhance the quality of emergency medical services and to further develop the role of a regional trauma center was undertaken at St. Francis.

The St. Francis Emergency Medical services Department opened at the old St. Francis Hospital just two years ago. It has grown to be a 24-hour-a-day, seven-day-a-week unit with physicians on duty around the clock. The Emergency Room physicians are provided with consultative or referral backup in the various medical specialties by members of the medical staff. Theyserve on a rotational on-call basis.

The emergency room suite in the medical center is equipped with virtually every lifesaving device available. It has the capability of serving at least 10 patients at one time. In the event of a disaster, the Medical Center has a plan that, when activated, expands the Emergency Room into all other areas. Nursing personnel in the emergency room area have all received special training and will continue to receive ongoing training in new techniques. The nurses who accompany patients on the helicopters must have received specialized education before they are qualified to attend patients on board.

The new St. Francis Medical Center is a 252-bed acute-care medical center committed to serving the total needs of its patients. Unfortunately, some accident victims may be left with a crippling disability. The new facility has addressed this problem with a Rehabilitation Department that Has a 20-bed inpatient unit and very active physical therapy, occupational therapy and speech and hearing departments for both inpatient and outpatient long-term restorative care.

In the future months, St. Francis will be the site of a computerized axial tomographic scanner - the latest in radiological diagnostic equipment. Area patients must now go to St. Louis of Memphis for this innovative new service. A cardio-diagnostic laboratory will be another new service at St. Francis when it is completed early in 1978. These two services alone have a price tag of $2 million, bringing the newly completer St. Francis Medical Center total cost to $20 million.

Patient transfer exercise set for Sunday

CAPE GIRARDEAU — A ceremony and patient transfer exercise to recognize the new Bi-State Emergency Medical Services designation at St. Francis Medical Center will begin at Sunday at the St. Francis Heliport site on the Medical Center grounds.

"St. Francis has been working with Charles Loftis, EMS Coordinator and Robert E. Motti, Regional EMS Coordinator of the Illinois Department of Public Health, Division of Emergency Medical Services to review their criteria for a EMS-Trauma Center. After a review of our emergency department , critical care unit, surgery, radiology and pathology, it was determined that we qualify as a Bi-State Comprehensive Emergency Service Center", stated John J. Keusenkothen, Administrator. "This designation further strengthens the regional medical center concept to which St. Francis is dedicated."

During the afternoon's program, a MAST (Military Assistance to Safety and Traffic) helicopter fromFort Campbell, Kentucky will give an actual demonstration of a patient transfer. Lt. Albert Vaiani, assistant MAST officer and Keith Junas, by stretcher from the emergency room to the helicopter, secure and stabilize the patient for takeoff, execute maneuvers and return to the Heliport for transfer back to the medical center. Lt. Vaiani and his crew will then open the hilicopter for the public to view.

At the same time, George Rouse and the Cape County Ambulance crew will have one of the local ambulances availble for public inspection. The Illinois Department of Transportation helicopter used for patient transfer will be on display, also.

With the installation of the heliport at St. Francis, helicopters from Missouri, Illinois and Fort Campbell, Kentucky will be able to pick up victims of plane crashes, river, railway and auto accidents and transport them to the Medical Center rapidly. The helicopter will also be used to transport patients from St. Francis when it is critical that the time away from the hospital setting be minimal

The heliport will be located on the east side of the medical center. It was carefully chosen for accessibility to the ambulance entrance. The FAA has worked closely with St. Francis to assure that the site is both air and ground safe.

The designation also means that the ambulance attendants and other health care agencies in the four-state area will be knowledgeable about the exact level of care rendered the critically injured trauma patient at St. Francis. This knowledge will enable the EMS personnel in the field to assess a patient's condition and transport him to the appropriate center for treatment. It is an important criteria in the successful treatment of the critically injured that their care begin at the earliest moment with as limited movement and transportation as possible.

Ambulances from the four-state area will soon have the additional capability of maintaining radio contact with the Bi-State Emergency Medical services Center at St. Francis Medical Center where physicians are on duty 24-hours-a-day, seven-days-a-week. The new base station uses the radio frequency 155.34. This frequency has been designated as the HOSPITAL EMERGENCY SYSTEM by the Bureau of Emergency Services, Missouri Division of Health. Through this means the ambulance attendants can keep in close contact with the St. Francis Bi-State EMS Center. Such contact insures that the medical personnel, additional staff and all equipment are ready for the patient upon arrival.

Earlier this year, a 220-hour emergency medical training program geared to enhance the quality of emergency medical services and to further develop the role of a regional trauma center was undertaken at St. Francis.

The St. Francis Emergency Medical services Department opened at the old St. Francis Hospital just two years ago. It has grown to be a 24-hour-a-day, seven-day-a-week unit with physicians on duty around the clock. The Emergency Room physicians are provided with consultative or referral backup in the various medical specialties by members of the medical staff. Theyserve on a rotational on-call basis.

The emergency room suite in the medical center is equipped with virtually every lifesaving device available. It has the capability of serving at least 10 patients at one time. In the event of a disaster, the Medical Center has a plan that, when activated, expands the Emergency Room into all other areas. Nursing personnel in the emergency room area have all received special training and will continue to receive ongoing training in new techniques. The nurses who accompany patients on the helicopters must have received specialized education before they are qualified to attend patients on board.

The new St. Francis Medical Center is a 252-bed acute-care medical center committed to serving the total needs of its patients. Unfortunately, some accident victims may be left with a crippling disability. The new facility has addressed this problem with a Rehabilitation Department that Has a 20-bed inpatient unit and very active physical therapy, occupational therapy and speech and hearing departments for both inpatient and outpatient long-term restorative care.

In the future months, St. Francis will be the site of a computerized axial tomographic scanner - the latest in radiological diagnostic equipment. Area patients must now go to St. Louis of Memphis for this innovative new service. A cardio-diagnostic laboratory will be another new service at St. Francis when it is completed early in 1978. These two services alone have a price tag of $2 million, bringing the newly completer St. Francis Medical Center total cost to $20 million.

Security plea made for Anita Bryant speech

JOPLIN, Mo. (AP) — Cecil Todd, director of a revival meeting scheduled to feature Anita Bryant this weekend, asked for additional security guards Tuesday after learning that gay groups planned protests.

The revival is also to feature Charles Colson who announced his religious conversion after the Watergate scandal toppled him from his post in the Nixon White House.

Miss Bryant is to speak at 7:30 p.m. Saturday at the tent revival.

Colson is to speak Monday night.

Todd said he expected 10,000 to attend the revival, "in a display of Christian morality."

Today in U.S. History

By The Associated Press

Today is Thursday, Sept. 22, the 265th day of 1977. There are 100 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1949, the Soviet Union exploded its first atomic bomb, four years after the first American nuclear detonation.

On this date:

In 1776, Nathan Hale was hanged by the British as a spy. He is quoted as saying "I only regret that I have but one life to lose for my country" as he was led to the gallows in New York.

In 1862, President Abraham Lincoln issued the preliminary Emancipation Proclamation.

In 1931, Britain abandoned the gold standard.

In 1965, a cease-fire was declared in a war between India and Pakistan over Kashmir.

In 1973, Henry Kissinger was sworn in as Secretary of State, becoming the first naturalized citizen to gain the office.

Ten years ago: The British liner, Queen Mary, sailed from New York on its last trans-Atlantic voyage after more than 30 years in service.

Five years ago: The U.N. General Assembly agreed to discuss the problem of terrorism despite objections by Arab nations.

One year ago: The U.S. Viking spacecraft discovered that the planet Mars had a polar ice cap of frozen water.

Today's birthdays: Actress Martha Scott is 61 years old. Socialite Alfred Vanderbilt is 65.

Thought for today: Things do not change, we do — Henry David Thoreau, American writer, 1817-1662.

Today in U.S. History

By The Associated Press

Today is Thursday, Sept. 22, the 265th day of 1977. There are 100 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1949, the Soviet Union exploded its first atomic bomb, four years after the first American nuclear detonation.

On this date:

In 1776, Nathan Hale was hanged by the British as a spy. He is quoted as saying "I only regret that I have but one life to lose for my country" as he was led to the gallows in New York.

In 1862, President Abraham Lincoln issued the preliminary Emancipation Proclamation.

In 1931, Britain abandoned the gold standard.

In 1965, a cease-fire was declared in a war between India and Pakistan over Kashmir.

In 1973, Henry Kissinger was sworn in as Secretary of State, becoming the first naturalized citizen to gain the office.

Ten years ago: The British liner, Queen Mary, sailed from New York on its last trans-Atlantic voyage after more than 30 years in service.

Five years ago: The U.N. General Assembly agreed to discuss the problem of terrorism despite objections by Arab nations.

One year ago: The U.S. Viking spacecraft discovered that the planet Mars had a polar ice cap of frozen water.

Today's birthdays: Actress Martha Scott is 61 years old. Socialite Alfred Vanderbilt is 65.

Thought for today: Things do not change, we do — Henry David Thoreau, American writer, 1817-1662.

Nixon tour members may have been drugged

WASHINGTON (AP) — Members of Richard Nixon's presidential party may have been drugged while traveling inside a "potentially hostile country" in the early 1970s, says the man who supervised the CIA's extensive program of drug experimentation.

Dr. Sidney Gottlieb, the CIA's former science chief, told a Senate panel Wednesday that his agency launched an investigation after some Nixon associates reported a series of bizarre and unusual symptons, including "inappropriate tears and crying."

Gottlieb said his recollection was that the incident "... certainly did not include the President." He did say, however, that when Nixon's physician returned to the United States, he "reported some unusual feelings he and several other members of the party had had."

"Are you suggesting that the presidential party was drugged?" asked Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass.

"I'm suggesting they wanted us to review and determine whether that might have happened," Gottlieb replied.

He said he believes the incident occurred in "approximately 1971" and, as far as memory serves, the CIA "could not unequivocally conclude that the behavior was due to some covert drug."

Kennedy is chairman of the Senate Human Resources subcommittee on health, which is looking into CIA drug experiments on witting and unwitting human subjects.

Gottlieb testified in an effort to justify the agency's experimentation with mind-altering and other drugs in the 1950s and 1960s. He said the American intelligence community felt it was essential to keep pace with foreign expertise in the use of drugs.

Testifying under a grant of immunity from prosecution, Gottlieb refused to identify either the physician or the country in which the suspected drugging took place.

ABC reported Wednesday night, however, that the incident occurred in May, 1972, during Nixon's trip to Moscow. The report was by special correspondent John Scali, who during 1971-1973 was a special consultant on foreign affairs to Nixon.

And The Washington Post reported in today's editions that two Nixon physicans showed signs of being under the influence of drugs after the Moscow trip. The newspaper identified the pair as Drs. W. Kenneth Riland, an osteopath, and Walter Tkach, Nixon's personal physician.

Disaster aid approval expected today

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Senate Appropriations Committee was expected to give its official approval today to the disaster aid bill for the five-county area including Kansas City.

At a meeting Wednesday, the committee members gave their tentative okay to the bill, but could not take official action on it because of some technical and procedural details.

The committee's action came just hours after the House voted 137-1 for final passage of the disaster relief bipl.

Proposals to add $15 million for future flood control in the Kansas City area and to add money for some bills passed during the legislature's regular session were withdrawn from consideration in the flood bill.

Legislative leaders had hoped the committee would pass the bill today so it could be taken up for final approval Friday by the full Senate.

If everything works out, the special session of the legislature could be brought to a close Friday, with only some technical meetings required of the leaders next week.

The disaster aid bill contains $15 million in federal funds to aid the local governments in Jackson, Lafayette, Ray, Clay and Platte counties, which suffered damage from the flood waters and heavy rainfall last week.

Hundreds were left homeless, 25 people were killed and millions of dollars in property were damaged by the flooding.

The flood relief bill also contained $1.2 million to help low-income families who lost property to the flood waters.

Originally, the bill called for spending $125,000 in state funds to bring in another $375,000 in federal funds for a total of $500,000 in family assistance money.

The House approved an amendment to increase the state's share to $300,000 with another $900,000 in federal funds.

During testimony in the House Appropriations Committee, officials said the initial estimates on the number of families who might qualify for the aid under the bill had been increased, so the lawmakers decided to make more money available.

The proposal for an additional $15 million for future flood control projects in Kansas City area also had been submitted to the House Appropriations Commitee and the full House.

However, the committee chairman, Rep. Wayne Goode, D-Normandy rule the plan was beyond the scope of Gov. Joseph Teasdale's request for disaster aid. Later, House Speaker Kenneth Rothman, D-Clayton, also turned down the flood contrl amendment.

Leon Brownfield, the Kansas City Council's Jefferson City lobbyist, had suggested the $15 million flood control idea.

Despite its defeat in the House, Brownfield took the matter to the Senate committee at the earlier informal hearings on the bill.

Wrong powder blamed for cannon explosion

ROLLA, Mo. (AP) — Police say an explosion that left one dead and six injured occurred because the "keeper of the cannon" at a University of Missouri-Rolla fraternity bought the wrong type of gunpowder.

Detective Clarence Tomnitz said a homemade cannon blew up during a ceremony Tuesday night because smokeless powder was substituted for black powder. Tomnitz said the student who fired the cannon bought the smokeless powder after he was unable to find black powder in local stores.

The cannon first failed to fire, was reloaded and exploded when it was lit the second time, investigators said. Although smokeless powder is harder to ignite, it is about three times as powerful as black powder.

The student, who remained unidentified, was interviewed Wednesday afternoon by investigators from the Rolla Police Department, the Missouri Highway Patrol and the university's security force. No charge was filed against him.

Flying metal inflicted head injuries that killed Randall L. Crustals, 20, a senior from Florissant, Mo. He was one of 50 students gathered outside the Kappa Alpha fraternity house following a pledging ceremony at a local church for members' of the fraternity's women's auxiliary, the Daughters of Lee.

Three fraternity members and a newly pledged member of the auxiliary were hospitalized and reported in satisfactory condition. Another KA member and a woman pledge were treated but not admitted.

"It just completely blew up," said Russ Kurtz, who is from the same St. Louis suburb as Crustals.

Thomas Dill, president of the fraternity, said the "keeper of the cannon" who fired it Tuesday night was on the gun crew last year and fired it on Aug. 20 when Kappa Alpha inducted its new pledges.

It had not been fired since. Customarily it is used less than a dozen times a year.

Caruthersville to elect chief next Tuesday

CARUTHERSVILLE – Eight men have filed for the job as police chief here.

A special election will be held Tuesday to select the new chief.

Those filing were: Ray Simonton, Norman Howell, Don DeProw, Sam Young, Harold Stricklin, Marvin Waldrop, John Yerby and Robert D. Jones.

The special election was made necessary when Jesse Johnson resigned as chief Aug. 31.

Albert ("Spud") Walker will serve as acting chief until the election. Walker was named Sept. 8 to fill the vacancy by Mayor B.F. Rogers.

The new chief will serve until April, when Mr. Johnson's term would have expired.

Nixon tour members may have been drugged

WASHINGTON (AP) — Members of Richard Nixon's presidential party may have been drugged while traveling inside a "potentially hostile country" in the early 1970s, says the man who supervised the CIA's extensive program of drug experimentation.

Dr. Sidney Gottlieb, the CIA's former science chief, told a Senate panel Wednesday that his agency launched an investigation after some Nixon asociates reported a series of bizarre and unusual symptons, including "inappropriate tears and crying."

Gottlieb said his recollection was that the incident "... certainly did not include the President." He did say, however, that when Nixon's physician returned to the United States, he "reported some unusual feelings he and several other members of the party had had."

"Are you suggesting that the presidential party was drugged?" asked Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass.

"I'm suggesting they wanted us to review and determine whether that might have happened," Gottlieb replied.

He said he believes the incident occurred in "approximately 1971" and, as far as memory serves, the CIA "could not unequivocally conclude that the behavior was due to some covert drug."

Kennedy is chairman of the Senate Human Resources subcommittee on health, which is looking into CIA drug experiments on witting and unwitting human subjects.

Gottlieb testified in an effort to justify the agency's experimentation with mind-altering and other drugs in the 1950s and 1960s. He said the American intelligence community felt it was essential to keep pace with foreign expertise in the use of drugs.

Testifying under a grant of immunity from prosecution, Gottlieb refused to identify either the physician or the country in which the suspected drugging took place.

ABC reported Wednesday night, however, that the incident occurred in May, 1972, during Nixon's trip to Moscow. The report was by special correspondent John Scali, who during 1971-1973 was a special consultant on foreign affairs to Nixon.

And The Washington Post reported in today's editions that two Nixon physicans showed signs of being under the influence of drugs after the Moscow trip. The newspaper identified the pair as Drs. W. Kenneth Riland, an osteopath, and Walter Tkach, Nixon's personal physician.

Disaster aid approval expected today

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Senate Appropriations Committee was expected to give its official approval today to the disaster aid bill for the five-county area including Kansas City.

At a meeting Wednesday, the committee members gave their tentative okay to the bill, but could not take official action on it because of some technical and procedural details.

The committee's action came just hours after the House voted 137-1 for final passage of the disaster relief bipl.

Proposals to add $15 million for future flood control in the Kansas City area and to add money for some bills passed during the legislature's regular session were withdrawn from consideration in the flood bill.

Legislative leaders had hoped the committee would pass the bill today so it could be taken up for final approval Friday by the full Senate.

If everything works out, the special session of the legislature could be brought to a close Friday, with only some technical meetings required of the leaders next week.

The disaster aid bill contains $15 million in federal funds to aid the local governments in Jackson, Lafayette, Ray, Clay and Platte counties, which suffered damage from the flood waters and heavy rainfall last week.

The flood relief bill also contained $1.2 million to help low-income families who lost property to the flood waters.

Originally, the bill called for spending $125,000 in state funds to bring in another $375,000 in federal funds for a total of $500,000 in family assistance money.

The House approved an amendment to increase the state's share to $300,000 with another $900,000 in federal funds.

During testimony in the House Appropriations Committee, officials said the initial estimates on the number of families who might qualify for the aid under the bill had been increased, so the lawmakers decided to make more money available.

The proposal for an additional $15 million for future flood control projects in Kansas City area also had been submitted to the House Appropriations Commitee and the full House.

However, the committee chairman, Rep. Wayne Goode, D-Normandy rule the plan was beyond the scope of Gov. Joseph Teasdale's request for disaster aid. Later, House Speaker Kenneth Rothman, D-Clayton, also turned down the flood contrl amendment.

Leon Brownfield, the Kansas City Council's Jefferson City lobbyist, had suggested the $15 million flood control idea.

Despite its defeat in the House, Brownfield took the matter to the Senate committee at the earlier informal hearings on the bill.

Wrong powder blamed for cannon explosion

ROLLA, Mo. (AP) — Police say an explosion that left one dead and six injured occurred because the "keeper of the cannon" at a University of Missouri-Rolla fraternity bought the wrong type of gunpowder.

Detective Clarence Tomnitz said a homemade cannon blew up during a ceremony Tuesday night because smokeless powder was substituted for black powder. Tomnitz said the student who fired the cannon bought the smokeless powder after he was unable to find black powder in local stores.

The cannon first failed to fire, was reloaded and exploded when it was lit the second time, investigators said. Although smokeless powder is harder to ignite, it is about three times as powerful as black powder.

The student, who remained unidentified, was interviewed Wednesday afternoon by investigators from the Rolla Police Department, the Missouri Highway Patrol and the university's security force. No charge was filed against him.

Flying metal inflicted head injuries that killed Randall L. Crustals, 20, a senior from Florissant, Mo. He was one of 50 students gathered outside the Kappa Alpha fraternity house following a pledging ceremony at a local church for members' of the fraternity's women's auxiliary, the Daughters of Lee.

Three fraternity members and a newly pledged member of the auxiliary were hospitalized and reported in satisfactory condition. Another KA member and a woman pledge were treated but not admitted.

"It just completely blew up," said Russ Kurtz, who is from the same St. Louis suburb as Crustals.

Thomas Dill, president of the fraternity, said the "keeper of the cannon" who fired it Tuesday night was on the gun crew last year and fired it on Aug. 20 when Kappa Alpha inducted its new pledges.

It had not been fired since. Customarily it is used less than a dozen times a year.
